

Research Participants Needed

This research study aims to examine how well touch-screen devices (e.g. tablet) and voice interfaces (Google Home) are used and accepted by older adults. This study will be conducted at the Interaction Design Lab at the University of Melbourne and it will last no more than one hour. You will have the opportunity to use the emerging technologies and share your opinions with researchers.

We are seeking participants aged over 65 who can speak and read English.

This study has received approval from The University of Melbourne's ethics committee (project ID: 1852008.1)
